ARE THERE ANY SAVERS OUT THERE?

3.1
For a long time, psychologists have divided people into either spenders or savers, depending on their personality. Savers are those of us who always know how much money they have in their wallets, and always plan their shopping ahead. They never buy anything simply because it is a real bargain. The future is unknown, and savers feel confident only when they are prepared for the future.

3.2
If you are a spender, on the other hand, you can't imagine your life without its little pleasures (like eating out, buying the latest gadgets or trendy running shoes) even if you can't really afford them at the time. Very often you have no idea what you have spent a 50-pound note on, and you usually don't know how much money you have in your bank account. So what? Why save? Life is too short!

3.3
The big question is, however, whether this division still makes any sense. Each and every one of us is constantly bombarded with advertisements on a daily basis. We are told that spending money is good, and we are encouraged to pay for everything by credit card. Is it surprising that people spend more and more money on things they do not really need? Is spending really a character trait, or a social trend? Are there any savers left out there?

Hello Jack,
 I'm really happy that your arm is not broken after all. I hope you're feeling 8.1 now and you will be able to play football really soon. Do you remember the game console my parents wanted to buy for me?
 I 8.2 a special offer on the Internet and the price was so 8.3 that they finally bought it for me.
 I have bought a new game, too. It's called 'Professional Football' and it's really good. I played it with my younger brother and he beat me 8.4 – he spends too much time playing games! He is much 8.5 than I am – he can press the buttons really quickly.
 You must visit us soon and we'll play together.
 I hope I'll see you at school on Monday.
 Cheers,
 Jim
